Points of Interest

(see map for locations, inside panels)

A. The San Juan Estuary

Where the San Juan Creek meets the Pacific Ocean.

B. San Juan Creek Trail

Once thought extinct in Southern California, Steelhead are attempting a comeback to their ancestral streams. San Juan Creek is also a draw for bird watchers, with thousands of birds such as Marbled Godwits and the endangered Brown Pelican.

C. Del Obispo Community Park

Featuring sports fields and courts, restrooms, picnic tables and playgrounds.

D. Creekside Park

A small park with playgrounds along the bike path to the beach.

E. Trabuco Creek

Running from Riverside to Orange County, Trabuco Creek measures about 21 miles. Trabuco Canyon is a popular recreational area and home to the creek headwaters.

F. Los Rios Historic District

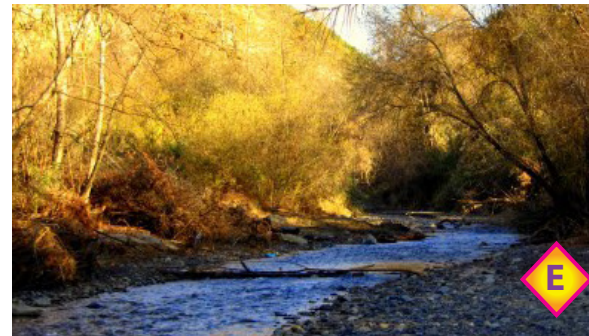

The Los Rios Historic District is the oldest neighborhood in California. Large trees were used here to define property boundaries for early settlements. The history of Los Rios St. is closely tied to the Mission; some homes are over 200 years old.

G. San Juan Capistrano Mission

The seventh mission founded Nov. 1, 1776, by Father Junipero Serra, and named for St. John of Capistrano, Italy. The mission's most famous residents are thousands of cliff swallows. Arriving in March, and leaving in mid-October, these special birds stop here to raise their young during their migration to Argentina.

H. Arroyo Park

A great neighborhood park in San Juan Capistrano with a large playground for children and large open grassy fields.
