A De La Guerra Plaza

The plaza is popular for its high visibility location and is predominantly used for public special events year round. Activities include booths, musical performances and lots of festivities for the downtown area.

B El Presidio State Park

Founded April 21, 1782, the Santa Barbara Royal Presidio was the last in a chain of four military fortresses built by the Spanish along the coast of Alta California, which was a wilderness frontier at the time.

C Lobero Theater

California's oldest, continuously operating theatre. It was originally built in 1873 as an opera house, and was rebuilt by architect George Washington Smith for the Community Arts Music Association in the early 1920s, and opened in August 1924. This was the time period in which civic groups in Santa Barbara were beginning to unify the town's architectural look around a Spanish Colonial style. The theatre continues to host arts and cultural events on 250 or more days per year.

D Santa Barbara Museum of Art

The museum opened to the public on June 5th, 1941, in a building that was at one time the Santa Barbara Post Office. The museum contains 27,000 works of art.

E Alice Keck Park Memorial Gardens

This lush, green park is one of the city's most beautiful spots. Well-tended gardens and beautiful landscaping surround a man-made pond with koi and turtles. One of the highlights of this park can be found as you follow the walkway around specialized planting beds that feature low-water species. Each species is chosen because it grows well in Santa Barbara with minimum water.

F Santa Barbara Museum of Natural History

The oldest museum in Santa Barbara, founded in 1916 by William Leon Dawson. The first buildings constructed at the current site happened in 1922.

G Santa Barbara Mission

The tenth of twenty-one California Missions to be founded by the Spanish Franciscans. It was established on the Feast of St. Barbara on December 4, 1786. Today the Mission is still very much alive and continues to be the chief cultural and historic landmark in Santa Barbara. The Mission's commanding position and grand proportions reinforce her title, "Queen of the Missions."

H Santa Barbara Courthouse

Designed by William Mooser III, the Spanish-Moorish style building was completed in 1929. Visitors can ride an elevator to the 85-foot "El Mirador" clock tower for unforgettable views of the city, coast and mountains. Other attractions in the courthouse include the Mural Room, "Spirit of the Ocean" fountain, noteworthy architecture and ornate tile work throughout the building. It is now an official National Historic Landmark.

I Paseo Nuevo

Here you'll discover a picturesque world of Spanish-style courtyards, winding paseos, gently flowing fountains and lush tropical flowers. Paseo Nuevo includes Nordstrom, Macy's, and more than 50 specialty shops. A unique selection of fine restaurants, art galleries and theaters await you, as well as a wide variety of the places you need to run everyday errands.

J Santa Barbara Train Station

The train station is served daily by two Amtrak lines, the Coast Starlight and the Pacific Surfliner. They travel to and from Los Angeles, Oregon, Washington, San Diego and San Luis Obispo. The station is fully staffed, with ticketing, checked baggage and package express services. The station was built in 1902 by the Southern Pacific Railroad in the Spanish Mission Revival Style. The Train Station underwent a rehabilitation and reconstruction project, which was finished in 2000.

K Moreton Bay Fig Tree

This tree is believed to be the largest Ficus macrophylla in the country. The Moreton Bay fig tree came to Santa Barbara via ship from the Moreton Bay region of eastern Australia. Originally planted between State and Montecito Streets, the tree was transplanted, by Hannah Crabb and her daughter Adeline, when it was "as tall as a walking stick".

L The Dolphin Fountain

At the base of State Street this fountain, entitled Dolphin Family, marks the entrance to Stearns Wharf.

M Stearns Wharf

California's oldest working wharf, Stearns Wharf is an important part of Santa Barbara's character and history. It was built in 1872 to serve cargo and passenger ships. In the 1930s, gamblers boarded floating casinos at the pier, and during World War II it was turned into a naval installation. Today, with a myriad of shopping, dining and dramatic views, the wharf is visited by 5 million people a year, making it one of Santa Barbara's largest tourist attractions.
