

E. Coronado Bridge

The Coronado Bay Bridge links Coronado to San Diego and was completed in 1969. Constructed using 20,000 tons of steel and 94,000 cubic tons of concrete, the bridge cost $50 million to build. It is 11,179 feet long (2.1 miles) and has a maximum height of 200 feet, allowing naval boats to pass underneath. It was the last toll bridge in Southern California to discontinue tolls, in 2002. The bridge has been featured in TV shows such as "Veronica Mars" and Will Ferrell's movie "Anchorman".

F. Tidelands Park

A 22 acre park located at the foot of the Coronado Bridge offering beautiful views of downtown San Diego across the bay. A small beach, recreational fields, picnic areas and open space make this park perfect for outdoor activities. Despite the name, actual tide pools on the island are on the ocean side in front of the Hotel del Coronado.

G. Ferry Landing Marketplace

The Marketplace features panoramic city views, charming shops, art galleries, fine eateries, tree lined walkways, swaying palms and sparkling ponds. The Coronado Farmer's Market is held at the Ferry Landing Marketplace every Tuesday.

H. Centennial Park

This park has a great view of downtown San Diego. The original ferryboat ticket booth and a rose garden are located near the entrance. The opposite end of Centennial Park has seating, views of downtown San Diego, landscaping, and a bayside sidewalk, connecting Centennial Park to Ferry Landing Marketplace, where you catch the Harbor Ferry to San Diego Embarcadero. There is a nice small sandy beach next to the landing with several retail shops and restaurants behind.

I. North Island Naval Air Station

"Birth Place of Naval Aviation" - First Sea Plane flight ever in 1911 and first mid-air fueling in 1923. Charles Lindbergh's plane was built in San Diego and flew from Coronado to New York on May 9, 1927.

J. The Baby Del (1144 Isabella Ave)

Built in 1887, the baby Del was originally a mansion on the mainland of San Diego, but moved by ferry to Coronado in 1983. The 13 room, 3 story mansion is built of California redwood. The house was originally piped and wired for gas, sewer, and electricity even though these services were not yet available in the area at the time of construction.

K. 1101 Star Park Circle

While Frank Baum, the author of Wizard of Oz, spent most winters at the Hotel del Coronado, he did rent this home for some winters.
